

Geography

Human and Physical Geography

Human Geography - the geographical features that humans change. For example: man-made buildings and population.

Physical Geography - the geographical features that are natural. For example: mountains, woods and rivers.

Research - Using the internet (with an adult to help) find out about the human and physical features of what London was like in 1666 and compare it to what London is like today. See if you can find some aerial photos of London in 1666 and 2020, what different features can you spot?

Look at the example on the Year 1 website page, draw a grid into your book and sort the human and physical geographical features into the correct places.

Human and Physical Geography of London - 1066 and Now

	Human	Physical
1066	Wooden Buildings	River Thames
2020	Skyscrapers	River Thames

Human and Physical Geography of London – 1066 and Now

	Human	Physical
1066	Wooden Buildings	River Thames
2020	Skyscrapers	River Thames